MINERS FACE U. S. TROOPS

SAMUEL GOMPERS ASKS CONFERENCE

Desultory Fighting Precedes Advance of Federal Regiments to Firing Lines—Indications Are That Miners Will Not Continue Advance—Fifty-seven Dead

By ROBERT STARR THORNBURGH
Special Correspondent of the International News Service

LOGAN, W. Va., Sept. 3.—Fifty-seven are dead and as many wounded as a result of the nine days of industrial strife raging in West Virginia. The casualty list is unofficial but is believed to be conservative, being estimated from reports reaching headquarters of the defenders at Logan court house.

Seven deputies are known to have been killed and several are missing from the Loganite army. The miners' casualty list is believed to be much heavier.

Firing Severe

Firing was general over the entire front of 25 miles during the night, but according to early reports no general attack was attempted by the miners. The firing consisted chiefly of sniping. Automobiles carrying reinforcements and reliefs from Logan court house to Ethel were fired upon and several shots were fired into the town of Logan.

The arrival of the federal troops is expected this afternoon in Logan. That the miners will quit when the troops arrive was the general opinion. However, Logan men say that it will be many weeks before order is completely restored. They say trouble will continue in isolated sections and that the authorities will be confronted by a tremendous problem in ironing out the situation.

Battle at Creek

The most severe fighting early yesterday and early today is reported at Blair Mountain and Crooked Creek. Four Loganites and several miners are declared to have been killed at Blair Mountain yesterday. A heavy attack was launched late last night at Crooked Creek. The miners were able to make slight progress, but were later thrown back with losses, according to officials here.

The daybreak danger period passed this morning without the general offensive of miners that has marked the past three days.

Reds Are Reluctant

The military authorities took this as a hopeful indication that the Red Band army has decided to suspend hostilities in anticipation of the arrival of the federal troops.

However, vigilance was not relaxed. New reliefs were sent out under Col. Jackson Arnold to Blair Mountain this morning. The battle has radiated around this point and Crooked Creek.

It was rumored that Arnold would launch an offensive this morning to clear Blair of miners. The little mountain town, like Verdun, lies in the shadow of the mountains. In it the miners have maintained positions for four days.

Sniping Operations

They have made periodical sallies out of the town, attacking the Loganites on the hill top.

The Logan men are expected to make a strong effort to clear the Blair Mountain district of miners today. Miners would have to pass this point or through a pass at Crooked Creek in order to reach Logan court house.

Night Fighting

Reports at headquarters indicated that firing occurred during the night over the entire front but that it is quieting down this morning.

It is believed a strong effort on the part of the miners to reach the county seat before the arrival of troops will be made.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—Official reports indicate that the situation in West Virginia is quieting, although there are unconfirmed reports of continued fighting, eneral Bandholtz reported to the War Department this afternoon from his headquarters at Charleston.

LOGAN, W. Va., Sept. 3.—The bodies of two unidentified miners were brought in from the Blair Mountain district this morning. They were probably killed in last night's fighting. No other casualties were reported during the night.

Heavy firing broke out at Crooked Creek at 10 a. m.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Sept. 3.—Word has reached here that with the arrival of the Federal troops, the miners are moving back from their entrenched positions in the mountains, preparatory to returning to their homes.

WILLIAMSON, W. Va., Sept. 3.—Forty-two funerals for miners killed in the fighting on the Logan county border, were held Friday in Blair, Sheriff A. C. Pinson was informed in a telephone message from the sheriff's office at Logan today.

"The number of miners killed is between 250 and 500, according to my estimates," said Sheriff Chafin over the telephone to Sheriff Pinson.

WILLIAMSON, W. Va., Sept. 3.—Fighting is in progress at Merrimac, five miles east of Williamson. The battle opened at 9 o'clock today, when a shower of bullets were rained on the village of Merrimac. The attackers are hidden in the hills on the Kentucky side of the river. The firing is still going on.

This is the first outbreak of trouble in the Mingo county region since the present disturbance took place.

SAYS RICHARDSON IS VERY POPULAR

J. F. Cramer, business manager of the Orange Daily News, one of the best dailies in the Southland, accompanied by his wife and son Jack, stopped over in Glendale today enroute home from a six weeks' trip up north, and gave the Press office a fraternal call. Mr. Cramer has been taking a much needed rest, and visited Seattle, Washington, where he was in business for a time.

During his trip he took occasion to visit many Northern California cities, where he has a host of friends, made through his office as vice-president of the California State Press Association. He naturally drifted to the newspaper offices, and Mr. Cramer says the sentiment for Friend Richardson for governor is strong and that it looks as though Mr. Richardson would be a sure winner if he makes the race. As state treasurer, state printer and in various other public capacities, Mr. Richardson made an enviable reputation as a good business man, and has saved the people much money.

SURPRISE BIRTHDAY PARTY

A surprise party was given last evening for a birthday celebration to Mrs. Mary G. Moore at the home of her sister, Mrs. James W. Pearson, of 700 North Louise street. A trip to the Merchants' Exposition for the evening had been arranged, and just before the Pearsons and Mrs. Moore started, friends from Los Angeles, Mr. and Mrs. John Schicketanz, Miss Irene Schicketanz and Mr. Berdoff called. After the trip to the exposition, the guests were served with ice cream and cake by the hostess, Mrs. Pearson.

LABOR DAY

To Our Readers:

As Monday, September 5, is Labor Day and a national holiday, set aside for the purpose of doing honor to the working man, the skilled artisan, the laborer and the man who by the sweat of his brow and his willingness to toil has made America the land that it is today, this is to announce the fact that the GLENDALE EVENING PRESS will not publish an edition on that day, giving the staff, the business and mechanical forces an opportunity to join the multitude paying homage to "The Man Who Toils."

TELEGRAPH WIRES IN TROUBLE ZONE CUT

(By International News Service)

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Sept. 3.—The Western Union Telegraph Company reported this morning that its wires had been cut last night, east of here, this side of Montgomery.

Disarming of the miners is expected to begin today, and it is expected that in a few days the federal troops will clear up the situation. A report received here today said that the troop train which reached Madison this morning had left for an unknown destination further up Coal River.

Reports today from sources considered reliable, stated that the armed miners have begun to break up.

Several officials of the United Mine Workers are in the disturbed area and are believed to have spread the news among the men that federal troops have arrived.

Another troop train from the west passed through here at daybreak this morning.

There was a feeling this morning in circles in close touch with the military authorities that the martial law proclamation already drawn up and signed by President Harding is being withheld and will not be promulgated.

Miss Alice Frank, who has been quite ill for the past three weeks, has returned from the hospital to her home, 1558 East Wilson. Miss Frank's mother, Mrs. E. C. Frank, who has been in New York city for a number of months, is expected home in about ten days.

FEDERAL TROOPS ON BATTLE FRONT

MADISON, W. Va., Sept. 3.—Three hundred federal troops arrived on the Logan-Boone border this morning. Communication has not yet been established between these troops and Colonel C. A. Hartin, commanding at headquarters here.

Several hundred troops under command of Col. Martin arrived here early this morning.

The commanding officer immediately dispatched a special train with 300 men to Sharples, ten miles back of the Logan border. Sharples has been a big congregating point of the miners.

What action will be taken by the federal troops to meet the situation is not known. It is considered doubtful whether it will be necessary for them to engage the miners.

The military expressed belief that when the fact that federal soldiers are on the ground becomes generally known to the miners, they will give up their attempted march through Logan county.

Col. Martin was making an effort at 9 o'clock to get in touch with the commander of the advanced detachment. It was anticipated that communication would be established within a few hours.

So far no miners have come "out of the hollows" on the Logan border.

Success of Big Show Indicated by Increasing Attendance, Which Packs Big Top

Not one of the 4,000 residents and visitors who crowded into the mammoth tent last night went away disappointed. Hardly had 7 o'clock rolled around than the ticket dispenser was compelled to "sit tight," and from that time until a few minutes before the curtain went down at 11 o'clock, she was kept busy. And during the intervening time there was something doing each and every minute.

Manager LeBreque has a happy faculty of showing a good time. Personally, he has a great streak of humor that would make the "gloom" break into a merry grin. In fact, he is half the show. He struck a good chord in the hearts of the 4,000 people last night when he said:

Considers Himself Glendalian

"You know, I now consider myself one of the Glendale young folks. I have never been better treated in any place I have been. You are a grand bunch of people. When I leave a town after having shown there, I always consider myself a resident of that place. That's the way it is with lendale. Hereafter, no matter where I may be, I'm a Glendalian. But the fact of the matter is, I haven't any more of a real home than a jackrabbit."

Last night the fireworks were started by Fred Jamson. Now, everyone who has been to any of the programs at the big tent knows Fred.

"Freddie" is Adopted

So well and favorably has he become known that, n announcing his numbers last night, Manager LeBreque simply said: "We will now be favored with a selection by Freddie." Everybody down to the water-boy seemed to know what was coming. In his line, Freddie is an artist. He can do dialect songs, and his tender rendition last night of "All By Myself" was enough to bring tears to the eyes of the most hard-hearted. The singer very graciously responded to the demand for "more."

Prizes Come Next

Following Freddie came one of the grand distributions of prizes. More prizes were given away last night than on any previous occasion. These ranged from a crisp $5 bill, concerning which Manager LeBreque said: "If you don't want it you can give it back to me," to a dozen quarts of milk, and from a package of breakfast food to a lemon squeezer.

"It must be some thrill," said Harry, "to hold one of those tickets all evening and finally find that you are the winner of a prize." From the expressions on the faces of some of the winners, Harry was right.

Circuit Program

Miss Irene Engle and Miss Ethelyn Davis captivated the audience again last night by rendering in their exceptional manner a selection entitled "All for You." Both of these young ladies have appeared on concert stages throughout the county for years, and the excellent work they are doing here seems to be fully appreciated by those attending the exposition.

Glenn R. Dolberg, who has appeared on the elevated runway on several occasions, was on hand again last night, and in his own peculiar way and with his wonderful voice, kept the vast audience spellbound until the last note had died away. Mr. Dolberg sang: "I'b Build a World in the Heart of a Rose," and he sang it extremely well, too. He is one of the numerous artists appearing on the program each evening who are adding to the class of the exposition.

At this point, Miss Engle rendered, by request, a beautiful little selection: "My Sweet Little Alice Blue Gown." This number was given by Miss Engle on Wednesday evening, and it carried so much appeal to the listeners that quite a number asked that it be repeated.

President of American Federation of Labor Requests Harding to Call Meeting of Miners and Operators to End Labor Troubles in State of West Virginia

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—President Harding today was asked by Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, and James Lord, head of the mining department of the federation, to call a joint conference of West Virginia miners and operators to consider means for a final ending of the labor troubles there. Gompers and Lord supported the similar suggestion made by John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers of America.

The President informed the labor leaders that until the authority of the United States has been established in West Virginia and order restored, he does not feel that he can act further. He said his first duty is the re-establishment of peace and order.

Today will see the crisis in the West Virginia warfare, in the opinion of officials here.

With federal troops in the trouble zone in full force today, Secretary of War Weeks again expressed the hope that the armed mners would now disperse and return to their homes and that a proclamation of martial law would not be necessary.

Reports from General Bandholtz, in command of the federal forces in the battle area, indicated that conditions were quieting. The latest report from General Bandholtz, received late last night, stated that airplane scouts had reported everything quiet, although "other reports indicate that there was at least the usual amount of fighting during the day."

Miners Hesitate

Reports from the office of Governor Morgan, Sheriff Don Chafin of Logan county and Col. R. R. Smith, one of the Logan defenders, indicated that the crisis had been met wth the arrival of federal troops.

The administration is reluctant to establish martial law in West Virginia unless it becomes absolutely necessary, it was stated officially, and final decision on the necessity of this action has been placed in the hands of General Bandholtz. Until he recommends martial law the proclamation will be withheld, it was stated.

The last detachment of troops was due to arrive in West Virginia today and orders had been issued for the distribution of the troops along the front lines in the fighting zone.

Adjutant Harris stated this morning that the last report received from General Bandholtz early this morning reported the situation quiet. General Bandholtz made no mention of the necessity for martial law in this report, the adjutant said.

FAMINE AND DISEASE FOUND ON TRIP TO WHITE RUSSIA

First Correspondent Over the Route From Warsaw to Moscow Gives Details

By ANNA LOUISE STRONG
Special Correspondent of the International News Service. (Copyright 1921, by International News Service).

NOTE—The author of the subjoined dispatch is the only American correspondent who succeeded in going from Warsaw direct to Moscow. The trip took her 54 hours, the roads being clogged by the caravans of thousands of Polish refugees. Miss Strong made the greater part of the journey in a boxcar.

MOSCOW, Sept. 3.—In course of arduous voyage from Warsaw to the soviet capital, I found that Poland is also grievously stricken by food shortage and epidemics. Hundreds of Polish refugees camped on the trail. Fire had partly wiped out numberless villages, and there are areas, formerly prosperous and well ordered, that now present a desolate wilderness. Thousands are without shelter and food.

There is no chance of land cultivation for there is no agricultural machinery. There are parts where no plow has been seen in years.

Polish quarantine headquarters at Baranowice, capable of accommodating 4000, is now swamped by 12,000 men, women and children.

Russia was in fair condition until last year, when the great drought set in, but living was still possible there.

This year it is practically impossible. All Russia is praying for rain but no rain comes. The withered branches are symbolic of the indescribable plight that has stricken at least a hundred million people and from which there seems to be no salvation. Humans and animals are dying like flies.

The populations of whole villages are fleeing to Siberia.

The food rations, meager as they have been for months, are growing smaller and smaller. There is no discrimination. Everybody gets the same.

From Minsk to Moscow I was fortunate in traveling on a fast special train, carrying mostly reparation officials and doctors. The train had the long forgotten luxury of a buffet aboard, and there was free tea for all passengers.

Swarms of barefoot boys, clad only in a single garment, are working tirelessly and enthusiastically collecting help for the poorer districts.

On the train the sole topic of conversation was, of course, the famine and its effect on the people. All agreed that the Russian population is showing a remarkable spirit and endurance. Workers are donating part of their wages to the famine sufferers. The peasants in the Jara district, where the harvest was fairly good, have donated 40,000,000 pounds of potatoes, which constitutes their entire surplus. All they asked in return was salt, of which there is a great shortage, and a few clothes.

BOILER EXPLODES AT LONG BEACH

LONG BEACH, Sept. 3.—One man and a girl were severely injured and more than a dozen other persons were cut by flying glass when a steam boiler exploded in the rear of the Yale Hotel, First and Pacific streets, here today. An investigation is being made by the police and firemen regarding the cause of the explosion. The detonation rocked the business section of the city and damaged half a dozen structures near the hotel. The Long Beach police estimate the total damage at from $40,000 to $50,000.

TWELVE INJURED IN TRAIN WRECK

COSHOCKTON, O., Sept. 3.—Twelve people were injured, none seriously, when eastbound Pennsylvania passenger train No. 34 left the rails five miles west of Coshockton last night. Seven coaches, making 60 miles an hour, ploughed into a steep bank with resultant scratches and bruises to scores of state fair visitors enrouted home. Two hundred feet of track was destroyed, but workmen had restored one track early today. The wreck was caused by spreading rails.

Rumor Regarding Used Ford Prices Is Untrue

By BENJAMIN A. FINCH

There has been a rumor circulating around town that the Los Angeles Ford dealers are all in cahoots on a standard price for second hand Ford machines. This is absolutely untrue, accordingto Benj. A. Finch, one of the oldest and best known Ford dealers in Los Angeles.

Mr. Finch says, "It has been reported that the Los Angeles Ford dealers have combined and by taking the motor number of every second hand Ford that comes in for appraisal, set a price on it and then phone the motor number around to the other Ford dealers so that when the car is brought in for sale the same price will be offered as the first place gave.

"For example, if a Ford were actually worth $300, but the first dealer it was taken to for appraisal and it was worth only $250, and phoned that information around to the other dealers, then when the same car was taken to some other dealer for sale and the same price was made the owner would naturally be under the impression that his Ford was only worth $250. Nine out of ten chances he would take that price believing it were worth no more. Thus he would be out $50. But the Los Angeles Ford dealers do not do business that way.

"Each dealer has several experts who judge the value of second hand Fords brought in. All it is necessary for these experts to do is listen to the motor and from the sound they can tell how much abuse it has been subjected to and the actual value. So expert are these men at the different Ford agencies that, I dare say, the value appraised by the experts at the various agencies will not vary $10 to $25. The difference in price offered by these appraisers will not be because they are unaware of the actual value but will often be governed by the supply of second hand cars on the floor.

"The difference in price from year to year models and models of the same year will amount to between $50 and $100, depending upon the condition of the motor, general appearance of the car, the tires and accessories.

"The Ford dealers as a rule quote from $25 to $75 more for second hand Ford cars than a second hand car broker. You can rest assured that when the expert of any of the Ford dealers quotes a price on a second hand Ford machine that price will be within $10 to $25 of the highest price that can be obtained from any of the other 18 Ford dealers," concluded Mr. Finch.

INCREASE EFFICIENCY IN REPAIR GARAGES

Price to Ultimate Consumers Being Reduced by Weeding Out Employes Who Are Not Expert in Performing High-Grade Work—Benefit to Owners

The effort of the California Automobile Trade Association to increase efficiency of repair shops and garages, and thus reduce the prices to ultimate consumers is bearing fruit all over the state.

During the war and the period immediately after the signing of the armistice, the demand for motor mechanics and repair men was so great that men who knew little about repairing motor cars found it was easy to secure jobs as first class mechanics.

Since that time there has been a weeding out of most of these unfitted men, and the workers now realize that they must know what they are doing or they will not be allowed to handle automobiles or repair them.

Reports Show Progress

"Reports from secretary-managers from all parts of the state show that mechanics are becoming more and more efficient and complaints of poor work fewer," says Robert W. Martland, secretary-manager of the state association. "The effort of the California Automobile Trade Association has always been directed to making better business men of the firms now in the automobile industry and cut down the mortality rate in our line of trade.

"Necessarily many of the weaker places have been eliminated during the last year, and more will be out before next spring, but those who fail are invariably the ones who have no accounting systems, who do not know what it costs them to do business, and who have a thousand and one leaks between the customers' dollar and the cash register.

Motorists Benefitted

"The motorist is affected to a greater extent than he realizes. If he takes his car to a place where things are run without waste he can get the job done at lower cost than if he takes his motor car to an establishment which has to add the cost of labor charges to the job.

"Conditions are improving every day, and our efforts are bearing fruit all over the country."

ROW 625 MILES

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 3.—After having been given up for lost, eleven seamen of the water-logged freighter Canadian Importer performed the apparently impossible feat of rowing 625 miles to this port.

The news of their safety and first details of their feat became known today when the Red Stack tug Sea Lion, which left here last night to tow in the Canadian Importer, wirelessed that she had picked up the lifeboat with its eleven men and as all were in good shape, is returning them to Canadian Importer.

EASY WAY TO GET MONEY

Indianapolis Youngster Preferred Good Time at Lawn Fete to Possession of Two Teeth.

This young man of eight years has been suffering the loss of his first teeth, and his mother has had him in the dentist chair several times. As the teeth show an inclination to part company with the boy, the dentist's bill is running up. Until last week the boy positively refused to permit his mother to pull his teeth. She told him finally that he could pull them and she would give him 50 cents for each one. He thought it over and decided to pull two loose ones himself. It was easy and he got $1.

A lawn fete was to be given in the neighborhood the other night, and the boy wished to go. The day before the affair was scheduled he brought four teeth to his mother and demanded $2. His mother was shocked, examined the teeth and found they were sound and would have lasted a long time. The youngster said he needed the money, as he expected to attend the lawn fete. He got it.—Indianapolis News.

Mud Pie Census.

Doctor Russell, who tells us that in a spoonful of good arable land there are more living organisms than there are people in the United Kingdom, has probably not wasted his time making an accurate count, but there is no doubt he is well within the mark, observes the London Chronicle.

A French bacteriologist recently caught his little son playing with a mud pie, and, borrowing a small portion of the mixture, carefully analyzed it in his laboratory. He found it teeming with microbes, but only took a census of the harmful varieties.

He found when he had finished his labor that the little bit of the "pie" he dealt with contained the following germs: Diphtheria, 1,800,000; measles, 2,450,000; smallpox, 900,000; lockjaw, 3,600,000; dysentery, 900,000; pneumonia, 505,000; tuberculosis, 620,000. And the total of nearly 11 million was only a percentage of the organisms in the delicacy.

Vacuum Plays Havoc With Boiler.

The usually imperceptible force of atmospheric pressure often reveals itself by some unexpected and peculiar tricks. One of the latest of its pranks was to crumple the shell of a heavy steel boiler in use near Okmulgee, Okla. The steam within the boiler had been allowed to cool, and in cooling condensed. All of the boiler fittings were so tight that no air could get into the boiler to take the place of the steam, which was now very much reduced in volume, and a vacuum was thus created in the shell. The result was that the pressure of the outside air crushed the boiler shell.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Auto Matches Jewels.

For the benefit of your wife, you might tell her that, if she wants it, many of the automobile manufacturers will have her 1921 car match her jewels. This is a fad in many sections of the East, where amethyst, garnet, topaz, sapphire and other colors are used in the upholstery, tops and the body made to correspond. In this way your wife will know that her jewels harmonize with the car. Of course, if she hasn't the jewels, she can order the car as she wants it, and then buy the jewels to match.—Chicago Tribune.

MAX GREEN TELLS OF LOCAL CONDITIONS IN AUTO TRADE

"During the two and a half years that I have been in Glendale business has never been as good as it is today," said Max Green, who with F. W. MacClellan, composes the firm of Green & MacClellan, 115 West Harvard street, distributors of the Oakland car for the San Fernando Valley. "While things in other sections of the country are sagging just a little business here is getting better every day. All of the merchants in Glendale with whom I have occasion to talk on this subject say the same thing. This prosperity reaches from one end of the city to the other, and in many places just naturally spills over the boundary line."

Everybody knows Max Green. He has lived in this and La Canada valley ever since he was a "wee tike." Upon completing his studies at the Glendale high school he went to live in La Canada. From 1912 to 1918 he was the official Ford agent of La Canada, but two years ago he purchased the Oakland agency of the San Fernando valley from Harry Hall and has been handling the Oakland since. About a year ago he sold an interest in his firm to Mr. McClellan and this company has been pulling with two oars ever since. Mr. Green is now living at 127 North Orange street.

At the last regular meeting of the San Gabriel Valley Auto Trades Association Mr. Green was elected to the office of vice-president of the association. A short time previous to that time the Glendale Auto Dealers Association consolidated with the San Gabriel Valley Trades Association. Each city in this association is entitled to a representative and it was to fill this position that Mr. Green was elected.

The San Gabriel Valley Auto Trades Association is divided into eight different departments, namely, motor dealers, garage and repair men, accessory, gas and oil dealers, tire dealers and vulcanizers, battery and ignition, blacksmiths and body workers, auto painters and trimmers. The San Gabriel Auto Trades Association is affiliated with the state auto men's association, so that all of the automobile men in the State are working hand in hand.

"The object of the organization," says Mr. Green, "is to protect both the dealer and the buyer. The buyer is protected by having the quality of the goods sold to him upheld. We have one price for any particular article, so that in no way can the buyer be gouged. We set a fair price on all goods and we hold to that price. By organizing the smaller merchants are protected from the fellow who would come in and undersell him and in that way run him out of business."

Two actual sales have been made by Green & MacClellan through their booth in the Merchants' Exposition, and in addition they have secured a large numbers of prospects. One of these was a touring car, while the other was a sport model. The new sport model that is being put out by the Oakland manufacturers will arrive in Glendale on September 12. Much interest is being manifested by motorists in Glendale in this new sport model, and it promises to prove exceedingly popular. Since taking over the Oakland agency in Glendale this firm has sold more than 200 machines, most of which were touring cars and roadsters.

HUMBLE PRUNE WINS HIGH HONORS AT SHOW

California Growers Association of San Jose Demonstrates Glorified Plum in Dainty Pies and Delicious Confections—Small Ones as Good as Fat Ones

Just what is a prune? Definitions of this article vary. Webster says a prune is a plum that has been dried without fermentation, former service men say that a prune or prunes are "the bunk," boarding house keepers say that they are a blessing, while housewives say that they are an item of the family menu that is often cooked but seldom eaten. All of the definitions of the humble prune are all right, as viewed from the viewpoint of the various authorities quoted, but the California Prune and Apricot Growers' Association, as represented at the Glendale Merchants' Exposition and Revue by Arthur Conn and Al Higgins of the Cobb-Leary Brokerage Company of Los Angeles, are demonstrating to the people of this city that the once humble prune has been glorified and raised to the ranks of delicate and dainty confections.

The Sun Sweet Pitted Prune exhibit at the exposition is one of the bright spots of the entire show. Around this display are daily gathered crowds of people, all of them anxious to taste the wonderful and delightful pastries that are made from the prune. Of course a large percentage of the crowd around the Sun Sweet booth is due to the attractive girls employed there as demonstrators. Six of these young ladies are helping to introduce Sun Sweet products at the exposition and for real grace, beauty and attractiveness these girls, individually and collectively are winners.

Small Prunes

It has long been the idea that the largest prune was the best. This belief is no more than natural, but through the efforts of the California Prune and Apricot Growers' Association it has been and is being demonstrated that the smaller prunes are the sweetest. The association at present numbers 10,000 growers, controlling practically all of the prune and apricot orchards of the state, with headquarters in San Jose. Cobb-Leary Brokerage Company are handling the products of the association throughout Southern California and it is through the efforts of this firm that the display at the Glendale Exposition was made possible.

Many Converts

Every day since the opening of the exhibit pies and cakes made of Sun Sweet pitted prunes have been given away as prizes. In addition to these prizes hundreds of pies and cakes have been given away at the booth in order to demonstrate to all visitors at the exposition the many delightful ways that the prune may be used in the home. Every visitor to the exposition is invited and urged to visit the Sun Sweet booth and sample a piece of prune pie, or cake, and the other delicious dishes on display.

All of the pies and cakes used at the booth are made fresh daily by the bakeries of Glendale. They are made clean, of the best material and served clean at the booth.

For the several pie-eating contests that have been held at the exposition the Sun Sweet booth has supplied the pies. Tonight the largest prune pie eating contest of the entire week will be held. A motion picture company has requested and been granted the privilege of taking pictures of this contest for use in their weekly news service.

As a grand finale to the exposition 12 pies made of Sun Sweet pitted prunes will be given away to holders of lucky numbers. These pies were all baked today by local bakeries, and right here it might be well to add that Mr. Conn, who has charge of the exhibit has said that the Glendale bakeries are making the best prune pastries of any bakeries in Southern California. Not only are they making the best pastries but, according to Mr. Conn, they retail these same pies and cakes cheaper, here in Glendale, than at any other place in the Southland.

In addition to the pies that are to be given away tonight, 12 bags filled with Sun Sweet products will also be given away. A partial list of the contents of the bag follows: Sun Sweet pitted prunes, Sun Sweet canned prunes, Sun Sweet fruit butter and Sun Sweet apricots.

CONGRESSMAN RANDALL VISITS EXPOSITION

"Your Glendale Merchants' Exposition would do great credit to a city of two hundred thousand people," was the remark of former Congressman Charles H. Randall, who spent a couple of hours today in inspecting the big show. "Everything about Glendale is almost on the miracle order," said he, "and it will no doubt eclipse all population increases during the next census period, as it has during the last."

Gilbert Shoppe Shows Latest Motif In Hats

One of the most attractive displays at the Merchants' Exposition is that of the Gilbert Millinery Shoppe, 123 North Brand boulevard. In this booth are to be seen the very latest styles in French and New York creations.

One especially pleasing hat, which is the newest thing in the French model dress or dinner hat, is that made of Clair de Lune, which means "Light of the moon." This is an adaptation of the French model of this hat and it is named after Ethel Barrymore. The Clair de Lune is covered with chantilly lace and is adorned with a wreath of French flowers of various colors and metalized wheat. Another hat, which is a beauty, is made of coral color silk lion velvet and is an adaptation of the famous Georgette model. It is beautified with a gray ostrich plume, which falls gracefully over the brim of the hat and upon the shoulder of the wearer.

At various fashion revues the mannikins at the exposition wore millinery furnished by the Gilbert Millinery Shoppe. Last night Miss Dolan, the beautiful little blonde model from the Fox studio, wore a hat furnished by this establishment. It was a white sort tam, one of the Knox models in plush.

Another hat from this shoppe was worn by Miss Davis, the concert singer. This was a Knox hat of seal brown with the very latest thing in a pattern veil.

The Gilbert Millinery Shoppe is carrying a very complete line of black hats of different styles. It seems that black will be the predominating color this year in hats. Many of the hats carried are of Spanish lines and are beautified with lace and metalized trimmings. Visitors to this store may be sure of getting the newest and finest in millinery.

Conditions As Seen By Chautauqua Lecturer

"In the course of my summer lecture tour, the only place where I found business conditions good was in and around Los Angeles," said H. V. Adams, who has just returned from Chautauqua tour engagements in the middle west.

"Atendance on the Chautaquas all over the east and the central west was smaller than common because of the business depression.

"However, bankers and business men told me they thought the corner had been turned and conditions from now on will improve. There is a more optimistic tone throughout the east.

"Almost everybody I met is preparing to come to California, and the only thing that will keep thousands from coming is inability to raise the money. They all said they were coming this fall or as soon as they could get their business in shape to come."

Referring to deflation and business adjustment, he said:

"I think the trust-busting wave we have had for several years has about run its course and business men are getting together in a friendly, intelligent way. Some folks declare it is a reaction, but those are radicals and alarmists. To my notion, it is a return to a more sane and sensible view.

"Farmers are holding their grain for high prices and are able to do so. The result is that notes and obligations coming due are remaining unpaid and banks are having to carry them simply because the farmers will not sell at present prices. That tightens up money. It is not a condition of suffering, not a panic or any approach to a panic, but an economic depression only.

"Prices are coming down to normal in most instances. Our labor schedule has been abnormally high, however, and until labor prices come down it will be impossible for manufacturers and large industrial enterprises to reduce their prices. The railroads cannot come down in the matter of passenger rates until they can reduce expenses.

"These things are in process of readjustment and, I think, will soon take care of themselves. Congress cannot solve them nor legislate enactments anywhere. They are solved by the adjustment of every individual to changed conditions.

"As soon as the farmers appreciate the fact that they are not going to get $2 for corn and $4 for wheat, it will help considerably. When the idea obtains that these abnormally high prices for produce or labor or goods are impossible, business will adjust itself quickly to the new basis."

CELEBRATE CRYSTAL WEDDING

Yesterday was crystal wedding day for Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Chappell of 338 Vine street, and a group of friends joined them in a celebration last evening.

Eight years ago, when Mrs. Chappell was living on Pioneer drive, a club was formed of neighbors on that thoroughfare, which was familiarly known as Pioneer Club. The guest list at the anniversary celebration included all the women of that organization who are not on vacations, their husbands, and a few other close friends, including Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Vinton, of Los Angeles; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Challin, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Van Dyke, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Bullinger, Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Frazee, Mrs. Mary Griggs, Mr. and Mrs. Blake Franklin and Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Abell.

The evening was devoted to games, interspersed with music, and the Pioneer Club presented Mrs. Chappell with a beautiful cut-glass vase.

The hostess had beautifully decorated her home, carrying out a pink color scheme with hydrangeas and asters, and at the close of the evening refreshments were served.

D. F. Richardson has leased the market at 1263 South Brand boulevard, which he recently purchased, to J. S. Gann, who has been managing it for the former owner. Mr. Gann will handle only the best meats at prices that are right.

WHERE THE CONFERENCE LEADS

Perhaps President Harding anticipated the future obstacles when he delayed summoning the world conference to limit armaments. Certainly he saw further ahead than Senator Borah, to whom is due the laurels for having brought to a focus American sentiment for disarmament. It was the senator's plan, however, to bring together only Great Britain, Japan and this country, the assumption being that these three powers were the only ones that had great navies today or who were seriously competing for naval supremacy.

But President Harding realized, apparently, the fallacy of this and when Senator Hughes sent out the invitation to the conference it was directed to the Allies and associated powers in the late war, which constitutes, of course, the supreme council of the League of Nations. But even this broader invitation has its limitations. The following from the Detroit News strikes directly at the core of the situation:

"The reasons advanced from Washington for the limitation of the disarmament conference to a small group of powers are wholly paltry and unconvincing. The most forceful argument brought forward to justify the invitations to Japan, Great Britain, France and Italy is that they form 'the principal allied and associated powers.' 'Allied and associated powers' in what? In a war which came to an end nearly three years ago!

"If the administration is still thinking of events in war terms it is singularly removed from the common thought of this country which is literally sick and tired of the everlasting perpetuation of the phrases and thoughts of the war period. Certainly it is a far step from the vaunted normalcy of which President Harding declared himself high priest and prophet.

"If the colonial rights of Belgium are touched on, when is Belgium to be heard? What nonsense! How can the colonial rights of Belgium be touched on any more or any less than the colonial rights of America or France or of the Netherlands? Is there one law for the 'allied and associated power' and another for the lesser peoples? Are the 'principal allied and associated powers' self-constituted into a committee of directors for the world for a period of indefinite duration? Is the war never to be adjourned?

"A gun is a gun the world over. It can be fired in Belgium just as easily as in Mexico. The only possible conclusion from the decision to limit the debate and its membership is that the hand-picked powers purpose impressing their will on the smaller peoples, and thus substitute for the common council of a League of Nations, a league of dictators. A fine outcome of America's aspirations, and a fine goal for a Harding society of nations!"

Certainly no exclusive group of nations, any more than a lone nation, should set itself up as dictator for the rest of the world. But an association of nations, holding the same purpose and open to all free nations, may readily be established and not only the question of disarmament, but a score of other questions of international character may come before it and be threshed out.

Those who are thinking seriously about the coming conference at Washington already realize that the sessions will not and cannot be limited to the question of armaments. Even if the subject could be confined to disarmament alone, it would certainly be necessary to set up some sort of international machinery to attend to the details of international disarmament. In other words, some kind of a world assembly or council must be forthcoming if the conference is to have an ounce of permanency.

GLENDALE BABY IS LEADING IN LOCAL BABY CONTEST

There was some discussion as to the winner of the baby contest, held at the big tent yesterday afternoon.

Some of the judges claimed that little Gerald Simon, 10½ months old son of Mrs. Louise B. Simon, 217½ Hawthorne street, should be given award, while others declare it should be given to a child from Los Angeles.

The decision will be made at the tent this afternoon, when the children will be examined and the winner declared. The prizes in this event will be awarded at the rally of the Chamber of Commerce to be held in the big tent next Tuesday evening.

Little Lillian Belle Springsteel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Springsteel of 900 Orange Grove avenue, was awarded third prize. Miss Lillian is 5 months old.

The judges of the contest were Dr. Ralph Maker of Los Angeles, Dr. H. G. Westphal, medical supervisor of the Glendale sanitarium, and Raymond B. Dunlap, chief attendance officer of the Los Angeles city schools. The group of nurses which was sent from the Glendale Sanitarium to attend the little tots consisted of Mrs. D. D. Harris, D. D., superintendent of nurses; Miss Emily Armstrong, R. N.; Miss Margaret Psenner, Miss Evans, Miss Anderson Fisher, Miss Halm and Miss Gardner. Dr. G. Kaemmerling was in charge of measuring the infants.

The baby who is given the first award will receive a loving cup, while the second and third prize babies will be given a silver feeding spoon.

Another feature that proved unusually interesting was the children's revue, in which only children between the ages of 2 and 6 years were entered. The first prize in this contest was awarded to Malcolm Edward Harris, son of Mr. and Mrs. George C. Harris of 1268 Mariposa street. Malcolm was dressed as a sailor and is three feet eight inches in height, weighs 42 pounds 8 ounces and is 4 years old. The second prize was won by Virginia Dare Harvill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Harvill of 432 West Lexington drive. She is 4 years old. Gordon Nelson Frazer, son fo Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Frazer of 633 North Maryland avenue captured third award. He is 3 years old and weighs 38 pounds.

These awards, as is the case with the prizes in the baby contest, will be distributed next Tuesday at the rally of the Chamber of Commerce.

'DREAM STREET' AT PALACE GRAND

For the first time in motion pictures, the great evening star has been photographed, appearing with a clear, luminous grandeur in D. W. Griffith's newest production, "Dream Street," now being shown at the Palace Grand Theatre.

The star appears in the story as the noble and silent sentinel which looks down upon all the world's evil and good, absurd and divine, big and little, always serene, certain and stimulating.

"Miracles of the Jungle," second episode, which has proven so popular during the last few days, will be shown again tonight.

CHILDREN'S CHURCH IS ORGANIZED BY GLENDALIAN

Mrs. Alyce Rose Gilchrist of 230 West Colorado street, who organized the Good Words Club of children in this city, announces that a Children's Church has just been established in Los Angeles which will have its first service in Grant Hall Auditorium building at 730 South Grand avenue, at 11 a. m., Sunday next.

Mrs. Gilchrist will conduct the service and give the children ideas which they can apply in a practical way in their lives which are so different from the lives of adults and so little understood.

The theme of her talk to the children will be "Let Little Children Come Unto Me." It will be preceded by a ten-minute talk to parents on how to answer children's questions. Following the service a short time will be given to answering questions asked by the children.

Mrs. Alice Patton, who is a children's teacher of music will have charge of the musical features of the service and will probably organize a children's choir and a children's orchestra.

Children of all ages from five years up will be welcome, says Mrs. Gilchrist, who has been a lecturer in Los Angeles on psychology for almost three years and who has quite a wide circle of followers there. She says she has no idea of abandoning Glendale as a place of residence and the children's club and the Wednesday evening lecture at the home of Mrs. Clyde Carmack at 811 South Central avenue, will be conducted as usual.

NEW CONFECTIONER

P. H. Hubbard, who has had much experience in the soft drink, ice cream and candy departments of one of Glendale's big drug stores, has acquired the confectionery store at 604 East Broadway, formerly known as the Virginia Sweet Shop.

Drawing on his long experience as a caterer to the public taste in the serving of ice cream, popular soft drinks, fine candies and confections, Mr. Hubbard has thoroughly made over the little shop and it is now most inviting. No doubt his former customers will flock to him and many new ones be added to his list.

Merchants' Exposition Is Overcrowded

quainted—Classie, Marlowe and her associates in the fashion revue, who were seen to advantage in a pretty line of sports clothes. The term has come to mean, in the public mind, bright color, daring combinations and the latest mode in cut, so naturally the audience was in a state of expectancy to see the offerings.

They consisted for the most part of skirts and brushed-wool sweaters. Most of the skirts were of prunella cloth and laid in pleats and, as usual, they are pleated and striped, the predomnating colors being brown and reindeer. The sweaters were of hip length and matched the skirts in general tone.

Jaunty Gilbert Hats

With these suits, which were invested with all the dash and verve of which the clever actresses who have filled the role of models were capable, were worn some very jaunty sports hats, which came from the Gilbert Millinery Shoppe. The Gilbert Millinery establishment carries a complete line of everything strictly up-to-the-minute in the way of millinery creations, and their goods are being used at the exposition in connection with all the displays of the Hatz store.

Another number was then given by Fred Jamison. This was entitled "Lena from Palesteena," with real comedy attached, and, as usual, Fred was compelled to respond with an encore.

Bathing Girls' Parade

Then came the bathing girls' parade. It had been announced that this would be a "one-piece" affair, so the people were, naturally, interested. But there was a big disappointment in store for those who were waiting breathlessly for the "abbreviations." When this particular feature was announced the crowd, as a single person, held its breath. A hush went over the throng and all eyes were turned toward the stage, bulging with expectancy, and after a brief moment, Miss Howard, her dainty little figure adorned in a stunning creation of yellow and black, with ruffles and lace galore, appeared. What she wore had no resemblance to a one-piece suit. In fact, it looked more like an evening gown. The only trouble was, it was too far from the floor.

Next came Miss Cavanaugh, the artist model who has such wonderful auburn hair. She wore a very attractive suit of black and white. Nothing out of the way, you understand, although it did not come quite down to the ankles.

Following Miss Cavanaugh came Miss Catherine Colton, another artist's model, who wore a suit which was termed "Liberty." It was an attractive creation of red, white and blue, and made quite a dent in the affections of the crowd.

Mss Viola Dolen, the bonde beauty from the Fox Studos of Hollywood, appeared next. She wore an extremely attractive suit entirely of red. During her appearnce here, Miss Dolen has grown to be quite a favorite with the Glendale people. They like her pretty face, her lovely hair and her shy manner. In this creation of red she quite lived up to her reputation.

Miss Marlowe Closes

The last of the 'bathing' beauties was Miss Classie Marlowe. Miss Marlowe would appear well in anything she might wear, but in the white and black fluffy thing she wore here, she was especially appealing.

Taken all in all, the bathing girls' parade was interesting. It was not a bit like what would naturally be expected of a feature of this kind. The suits worn could be used very nicely at a modern "high society" function, but at the beach—never. As one person put it, "Those suits are all right to sit on the sand in, but they were never intended to be wet."

Following the bathing suit parade there was another beautiful duet entitled "Wyoming Lullaby," by Miss Engle and Miss Davis. A short intermission occurred after this number, followed by the drawing of numerous prizes donated by the merchants of Glendale.

Double Bill Tonight

Tonght promises to cap the climax at the big tent. Manager LeBreque announced that there would be a double bill, which means that not a minute will be wasted. The largest crowd of the exposition is expected to push its way into the big tent this evening, and the management is preparing for the increased attendance.

Australia's Geographic Position.

Australia's exact position on world maps, originally determined by Captain Cook, the early explorer, was brought into question recently when wireless authorities, after direct checking by radio with standard time clocks at Lyons, France, said they believed there is an error of perhaps 100 yards on all maps in Australia's north-south lines.

Seafarers who first sketched Australia's position based their calculations on the chronometer, the finely made watch which keeps Greenwich time. Corrections were made from time to time, until final checking by cable was believed to be accurate.

Lately, however, Sydney wireless men who have been listening to the clock ticks at Lyons, say they have discovered there is a perceptible loss of time in transmitting the correct seconds over the cable. The loss, it is said, led to errors in map-making.

BUSINESS IN NORTH AND SOUTH IS COMPARED

W. F. Hemenway, who with his wife has recently returned from a tour of the north, is a stronger booster than ever before for Southern California in general and Glendale in particular. Commenting on his recent trip, Mr. Hemenway said: "I never really knew what a wonderful place Southern California is until I visited my old home in Seattle, Washington."

Mr. Hemenway spent some time in Seattle and in Portland, Ore. and he says that with the exception of Portland business in the north is practically dead. In his statement that business was dead in the north with the exception of in Portland, Mr. Hemenway said, "I do not except San Francisco, when I say that Southern California, from a business standpoint ranks highest on the coast."

According to Mr. Hemenway, Seattle has been the hardest hit by the present business depression. Seattle is a port and has only two things to depend on—its shipping and shipbuilding. Shipping, according to Mr. Hemenway, is dropping in volume and the building of ships, in Seattle, has been discontinued. 'In most cases the huge ship yards, that were formerly one of the predominating features of the northwest in general and particularly in Seattle have been dismantled and spots that were a few months ago teeming with activity are, at present, desolate wastes without even a building remaining to mark the spot where, recently, giants of the sea were in the course of construction.

One of the most tragic markers in the decline of the ship-building in Seattle, says Mr. Hemenway, is the ground where the Seattle Construction & Drydock Company formerly had their plant. This company is the one that, more than 20 years ago built the U. S. S. Nebraska. Since that time it has turned out many other huge vessels, some for the government, some for the passenger service and many for the freight traffic. The yards and ways of this company have, for many years, been one of the prominent landmarks in Seattle. Mr. Hemenway says that these same yards have been dismantled, the ways torn down and the place at present is just vacant land.

With the closing down of the shipbuilding industry, Mr. Hemenway says, that more than 40,000 people have left the city and that this hegira of working people has naturally crippled business in general to such an extent that it will be several years before it will attain normalcy.

Another feature of the trip to the north that impressed Mr. Hemenway and is worthy of comment was the sight of 43 of the 53 ships that the United States government had built to be used in transoceanic freight service at a cost of $350,000 per ship, docked in Lake Union, in the heart of Seattle. After the government had these ships built at a total cost of $17,500,000 it was found that they were entirely too light for ocean freight service. To date the government has only disposed of 10 of these ships, says Mr. Hemenway, receiving $10,000 for each ship.

Mr. Hemenway says that a plan has been offered and has received considerable suport in Seattle to remove the machinery from these vesseis and sell it for any price that is offered, then sink the hulls in Lake Louise.

"Generally speaking," said Mr. Hemenway, "business in the north is very bad and I am more than glad to return to Southern California and Glendale that is, as yet, untouched by the general depression."

GIRL SCOUTS ENJOY FESTIVE TIME AT CHANDLER HOME

Friday was a red-letter day for Troop No. 1, Glendale Girl Scouts, and their director, Miss Gladys Sharpe, for 13 were initiated and no ill-luck attended the ceremonial.

It took place at the home of Sara Chandler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Chandler, on La Canada boulevard.

As a preliminary and contrast to the serious work ahead, a mock initiation in court trial form took place, in which Margaret Longley had the role of prosecuting attorney and Cecil Chase that of attorney for the defense. It was a gay performance.

The real ceremony whch followed was the regular girl scout investiture when the 13 initiates took the oath and all the girls received their pins. All were dressed in their uniforms, consisting of white middies and skirts and black ties.

After the investiture came a short business session at which the troop decided to leave next Wednesday for its three-day outing at Camp Baldy, when it will be accompanied by Mrs. Charles A. Parker, as well as its director, Miss Gladys Sharpe. They will go by truck to the power station and hike the other six miles.

To complete the pleasures of the afternoon, a delicious supper, which the troop had provided in honor of the initiates, was served at a big table under the trees, with a wooded setting round about and the murmur of a brook sometimes faintly audible. A more ideal scout meeting place would be hard to find.

Mrs. A. S. Chase, Mrs. E. T. Allen and Mrs. R. M. Brown, who constitute the Girl Scout Council, were present, and the girls initiated were:

Tamson Johnson, Alice Cleveland, Lois Naudain, Frances Betz, Bertha Brown, Carolyn Ayars, Catherine Bender, Lucile Beach, Frederika Brown, Beryl Goodale, Alice Carpenter, Charlotte Blakney and Alexandria Bagley.

These, wth the 15 scouts who have been members for a year, bring the roster to 28, and after school opens, enough more are coming in to bring the enrollment up to 32 and complete the troop membership.

IS LONG-HERALDED GLENDALE HOTEL NOW IN SIGHT?

Is the long-heralded Ambrosni hotel now a near probability? For several seasons a big billboard has conveyed the information that a modern hotel would occupy the vacant tract at the northeast corner of Glendale avenue and Broadway in the near future, and when Mr. Ambrosini was asked about it he said the building of his large mausoleum in St. Paul had cost so much more than anticipated that he would have to wait until he sold his business and residence properties in Glendale before he could carry forward the hotel project.

Most of Mr. Ambrosini's residence properties were sold some time ago and now that Mr. Ingledue has bought the business block, the natural query of Glendale people is "will Mr. Ambrosini now redeem his promise and erect a large hotel on the site chosen by him several years ago?"

His original plans comprehended much more than a hotel. In fact he and other enthusiastic property owners and believers in Glendale's east-side section visioned Glendale avenue repaved, and with concrete this time, both sides lined with beautiful residences and business blocks, the parkways vivid with flowers and shade trees and an electrified Salt Lake line alive with swift moving cars plying between Los Angeles and Sunland via Glendale, Verdugo Woodlands, Montrose and La Crescenta. An up-to-date theatre building was in the plans, also.

FAREWELL PARTY AT WIMMER HOME

Members of the K. K. Klub enjoyed a farewell party last night at the home of Miss Louise Wimmer, 312 North Orange street, for the girls and boys who have been graduated from Glendale High and who will soon be enrolling in various colleges and universities.

The high school colors, red and black, and the class colors, red and green, featured the decorations, and after an evening devoted to dancing and "Bunko," dainty refreshments were served.

The guest list included: Misses Lois and Edith Schuyler, Beulah Warren, Grace Warren, Garnet Peters, Margaret Frazee, Millicent Alvord, Grace Judd, and Lucile Wood, Messrs. Walter Marple, Lloyd Culver, Roland Percy, Don Davis, Philip Davis, Raymond Goodman, Homer Warren, Lee Davis, Wade Davis, Rhuark Dudley, Earl Davis, and Rob Howlett.

Miss Wimmer, the hostess, and her friends, Eunice Caldwell and Beulah Warren are to enter Occidental, Millicent Alvord and Grace Judd go to Pomona, Garnet Peters to University of California, and Margaret Frazee to U. S. C.

MOON FESTIVAL DRAWS CROWDS TO TUJUNGA

Millionaires' Club of Happiness and Contentment Opens Bank of Joy to General Public—Large Number of Visitors Present—All Southland Invited

THE MILLIONAIRES' CLUB OF THE GREEN VERDUGO HILLS hereby bestows upon the bearer whatever sum of Happiness and Contentment he may from time to time endorse on the back hereof. The same to constitute a perpetual loan, free of all interest;

Provided, That it is hereby mutually agreed and understood that the bearer hereof shall immediately put into general circulation whatever sums of Happiness he may draw by virtue of this instrument, and that on any sums which he may secrete and board for his on exclusive enjoyment, interest shall be payable in sorrow and discontent."

(Signed) The Millionaries' Club of Happiness and Contentment.

Executed at Tujunga in the Green Verdugo Hills, Sept. ———, 1921

It is not to be doubted that the foregoing instrument, when executed by the hundreds of people who are taking advantage of the offer, will spread just a little more Happiness and Contentment among the crowds of the Roaring Town, will bring the philosophy of the Green Verdugo Hills into a few more lives. This is just what the Millionaires' Club, and indeed all the people of the Hill country are most anxious to do.

In order that as many as possible may take advantage of the offer made in the note, the Club, at its meeting place in the midst of the hurry and bustle of the Moon Festival now going on, will distribute the notes to their guests. Every visitor to the festival is invited to the daily meetings of the Club where the tobacco jar will be always open, and a spirit of friendliness and good will predominates.

If the truth be known it is just a little hard for the neighbors to pursue the even tenor of their accustomed ways amidst the crowds that are daily making the pilgrimage to the Valley Beautiful. Strange and unaccustomed noises greet the ear and sights wonderful to behold meet tne eye. But through it all the neighbors maintain as much of their ever present tranquility as is possible, and greet the crowds with a hand outstretched and a hearty smile of comradeship.

Even more beautiful than in their usual starry grandeur are the boulevards and groves, now turned into white arched and sparkling passageways by myriads of twinkling electric lights. The patriotic note is carried out by hundreds of flags and yards of bunting, lending the required touch of color for the daytime.

While there are many outside concessions appealing to everyone, the Moon Garden and the Temple of the Golden Moon, arranged by local people are perhaps the most attractive. In the former refreshments of all kinds are served, while in the latter a program of rare beauty and abounding in the artistic effect for which the Tujungans are so noted is given nightly.

Last night the Pearl Keller School gave the program for the free entertainment and needless to say it was excellent. Free attractions similar to this are offered every night.

Many Glendale people have already attended the Festival, either going in their own machines or by way of the street car and stages. Many more are planning to attend, and every one comes away with a feeling of hours well spent, having acquired, it is to be hoped, a large measure of the Happiness and Contentment so freely offered and given.

HART REALTY CO. REPORTS BIG SALES

A lot at the corner of Brand and Lexington owned by George Walker has just been sold to E. S. Smith of Los Angeles for $9500. The sale was negotiated by the Hart Realty Company.

Another sale by the same firm of two lots at the corner of Lexington and Howard with a bungalow garage was made to Tom Moore for $3600. He is from Washington, D. C., has just arrived, and is going into business here—radiator repair work.

Mr. Hart says there is quite a movement in east side property, notably on Broadway. He reports the sale of six lots to one purchaser on the north side of the street near the Broadway School for $10,000.

Four lots east of the Broadway School near Verdugo road were sold for $6,000.

A small house and a lot 50x200 on North Olive near Broadway were sold by this firm for $1850.

It is also handling west side property and reports the sale of a lot on Salem, near Pacific, improved with a 4-room house, for $4750.

A lot on West Broadway near Pacific has been purchased by Miss Brey for $1650.

Mr. and Mrs. Antrim, who came from the east a year ago and who have been living in Los Angeles have decided they like Glendale better and have bought property at 730 East Raleigh, a lot 60x140, improved with a 4-room house, for $3000. The former owners, Mr. and Mrs. George Meyers, were obliged to go east and sold in a hurry.

H. M. LAWSON SEEKS AN IDEAL CITY

H. M. Lawson of Washington, D. C., who has been touring the west looking for the ideal city, arrived in Glendale Friday and wanted to know all about us. He said he was seeking a go-ahead place not only for a home but as field for investment and Glendale made a pretty good impression. He was sent to Secretary Rhoades of the Chamber of Commerce as the man best calculated to tell him what he wanted to know, and if he is not an enthusiastic Glendalian after he has had an interview with that ardent booster for our little city he will have proved less susceptible to interesting solid facts than are most of the men who talk with Mr. Rhoades.

HUNTERS LEAVE FOR SEQUOIA

A happy quartet of hunters left Glendale at an early hour this morning by auto for a two-week's hunt in Sequoia National Park. The party includes Thomas Hutchinson, 319 N. Orange; G. W. Warner, 320 N. Orange; Alford Neighbors of Rivera and J. W. Neighbors of Downey. They will camp on the south fork of the Kern river and anticipate a fine time with plenty of game.

E. P. HAYWARD SAYS BUSINESS IS GOOD

E. P. Hayward echoes the declarations of other operators concerning the brisk movement of real estate in all parts of Glendale but expresses the opinion that it is a little swifter and heavier in the northwest than in other directions.

To sustain his opinion he quotes a conversation had with the local telephone company concerning the installation of a telephone and when it might be expected.

In reply he was told it would depend on what section of the city he lived in. If in the northwest his case would be quite hopeless as the lines there are so overburdened that no additions can be made.

He says, too, there is no fiction about the advance in values. Lots that his firm sold a year ago for $400 are now selling again for $800, while the $800 lots are bringing $1600. In other words lots have doubled in value and the advance is continuing at such a ratio that owners cannot afford to give long options.

STRUCK BY AUTO

According to the story told to the police department by R. W. Booth, 923 Fourth street, Santa Monica, yesterday afternoon, he was walking along the road from Tujunga to Pasadena near the cross road where the Montrose road poins the highway, when he was struck by an automobile driven by Simon Chiligirtan of Fresno, Cal., and hurled to the ground.

CHAS. H. THOMPSON BACK FROM TRIP TO NORTHWEST

After spending a month touring through Northern California, Oregon and Washington, Charles H. Thompson, Glendale real estate man, has returned to this city firmly convinced that for real prosperity Southern California cannot be beat.

Mr. Thompson and his family sepnt the greater portion of their vacation visiting Seattle, Tacoma, Yakima, North Bend and in the Kittitas Valley region of Washington.

According to Mr. Thompson the entire northwest is experiencing a post-war slump that has an added sting, coming as it does on the heels of one of the greatest financial booms ever experienced. During the war and immediately after the war Seattle was the center of the ship building industry. The lumber camps and mills were operating at capacity. Mr. Thompson says that at present shipbuilding is a dead industry in Seattle and as a result lumber mills are operating only half time, if at all, and are paying an extremely low wage scale. In many lines, acording to Mr. Thompson, wages have been lowered 50 per cent.

While the industrial and financial situation of Washington and the northwest is in a deplorable condition, Mr. Thompson says that wheat and other crops will exceed previous years. Wheat in the Kittitas and Yakima Valleys will, according to his statement, run close to 75 bushels to the acre. Hay is plentiful but is bringing very poor prices. Dairy and farm products are plentiful but, like hay, finds a very low market.

The one bright spot in the present slump in the northwest, says Mr. Thompson, is the fact that the cost of living with very few exceptions has dropped from 25 to 40 per cent lower than other sections of the country. Milk is one item that shows an appreciable drop in price. In practically all of the cities of Washington milling is selling for 10 cents a quart.

When asked if he thought that a similar industrial and financial slump was a possibility for Southern California, Mr. Thompson said that in his opinion such conditions as exist at present in the north would never prevail in the southland. He cited as his reasons for this belief the fact that Southern California has, since the close of the war, had a tremendous growth in population. These new residents have brought with them considerable capital that has been invested in industries of the southland. Another reason advanced by Mr. Thompson for believing that such a slump is not threatening here is that while Southern California industries made considerable financial gain during the war the profits were not excessive and were based on sound investments rather than on "war babies" such as carried prosperity to the north.

"To my mind there is no place on the Pacific Coast, from Mexico to the Canadian border, that approaches the prosperity of Southern California," is the way Mr. Thompson summed up his opinions of the financial and industrial conditions of Southern California as compared with the northwest.

L. W. CHOBE AGAIN CAPTURES A PRIZE

L. W. Chobe has had so many feathers put into his cap by successes as a designer and decorator that it was no surprise to his friends to learn that the booth he had planned to house the exhibit of the Glendale Electric Company at the Merchants' Exposition, won a first prize. Mr. Chobe is accustomed to having honors come his way and though gratified when this proof of his taste and skill was received, was not unduly flattered.

MRS. PARKER ENTERTAINS

Mrs. Charles A. Parker, of North Orange street, entertained at afternoon tea yesterday a group of old friends, including Mrs. Adams Kent and daughter Muriel, whom she had known in Winnipeg, Manitoba; Mrs. Emma Bartlett, chairman of public music in the Federation of Music Clubs of California; Miss Mercedes Bennett of Detroit, niece of Mrs. Bartlett, who has been spending some time in Southern California and studying under Olga Steeb; Mrs. Henke and daughter Margaret Henke of Detroit, who have been in California for several months and may locate here; Miss McIntosh of Winnipeg, a coloratura soprano; and the following ladies from Glendale: Mrs. A. M. Draper, her mother, Mrs. Hogan, Mrs. Charles Meadows, Mrs. Gladys Gibbs Sherman and mother, Mrs. Alma Gibbs, Mrs. L. N. Hagood, and Miss Lucile Allen, who assisted Miss Winifred Parker, daughter of the hostess in serving of refreshments.

The party was quite informal but none the less a very delightful affair for the hostess and all the old friends thus brought together.

SPECIAL OFFICERS ARE MOBILIZED

WILLIAMSON, W. Va., Sept. 3.—All special state policemen in Mingo county, numbering approximately 700 have been mobilized by Major Thomas B. Davis, military commander of the county, following alarming reports of the concentration of armed miners at several points on the Kentucky side of the Tug river.

One assembly is opposite Merrimac, four miles east of Williamson, where heavy fighting took place during the three days' battle last May. A considerable force assembled at Kermit but was dispersed.

A demonstration is feared against the county jail, where a number of officials are being held on murder and other felony charges in connection with recent disturbances.

LEARNED'S HAVE SHOWER

The reception and shower for Mr. and Mrs. Willard Learned at the home of Mrs. Eva Hutton on East Colorado last night was a very pleasant affair largely attended by members of the Christian Church. Of the games which provided the entertainment of the evening one was a musical romance written by the hostess for which Miss Florence Haycock furnished the music.

A corner of the reception room had been decorated with ferns and converted into a floral bower over which an inverted umbrella had been suspended. To this corner the bride was lured, the umbrella was tipped and she was made the recipient of many gifts which will be of service in her new home in Indianapolis, Ind., where she and Mr. Learned will spend the winter in preparation for work in the mission field.

MRS. RUDY ENTERTAINS

Mrs. Mabel Rudy entertained members of the Foster Bridge Club yesterday at her pretty home at 437 South Central avenue, and added an extra table to the regular club roster.

Mrs. Sallie Braden substituted for Mrs. A. H. Montgomery, who is at Catalina, and Mrs. E. P. Hayward for Mrs. Helen Campbell.

The special guests of the afternoon were the sister of the hostess, Mrs. John Mattson, Mrs. Bert Woodard, Mrs. W. L. Andrews, and Mrs. Frank Echols, and the regular club members who gathered around the tables were Mrs. C. E. Norton, Mrs. E. W. W. Hayward, Mrs. W. W. Ramsey, Mrs. S. B. Morse, Mrs. A. H Lapham and the hostess

Wonderful dahlias from the garden of Mrs. C. E. Norton were used in decoration, and refreshments were served at the close of play.

CONFLICT OF TESTIMONY

Charging that he had been crowded from the road, Earl Gibbs, 330 South Flower street, Los Angeles, blames W. R. Boneteake, of New York, at present living at 5930 Carlton Way, Hollywood, for damages to his car. At the S. P. crossing Gibbs claims that while attempting to pass him, the car driven by Boneteake swerved—the rear end striking the Gibbs car, breaking the front wheel frame and doing other damage. Boneteake, in his report of the accident to the police, claims that the car driven by the Los Angeles man ran into his machine, tearing off the steps and fender on one side.

REPORTS INJURING MAN

G. H. Hoffman, 549 Fairmont avenue, reported to the police department yesterday afternoon that, while driving north on San Fernando boulevard, at the corner of Milford street, he struck N. Emmons of 138 North Adams street, who was standing beside an automobile at the side of the road. Mr. Hoffman said that he did not see Mr. Emmons standing beside his car as, when the accident occurred, he was watching another car and preparing to make a turn at the street intersection.

MRS. RAMSEY SELLS

Mrs. Cora Ramsey, who has been prominent in club and social life of Glendale, being one of the past presidents of the Tuesday Afternoon Club, will surrender her home at 137 South Adams street early next week, to David A. Raoch of Los Angeles, who recently purchased it. He is a widower and two sisters and a niece will live with him.

Mrs. Ramsey has sold part of ser household effects and will store the remainder, in order that she may be free for a trip to the Orient, which she plans to make in the near future, sailing from San Francisco, and making stops at Honolulu, Japan and China.

MRS. ENGLEHORN BURNED

Mrs. Philip Englehorn, who formerly resided at 312 East Lomita, but is now living at 1032 South Valencia street, Los Angeles, recently suffered an accident in the explosion of gas from an oven, which had been turned too low and had gone out. Her hair and eyebrows were signed and face scorched, but a neighboring physician gave her immediate aid and she is doing fairly well.

COLLECTS $125 IN FINES

Traffic violators enriched the treasury of the city of Glendale approximately $125 yesterday. Judge Lowe tried 35 cases for traffic violations.

Height of European Countries.

According to geographers, the average height above the sea of the different countries of Europe is as follows, stated in feet: Holland, 150; Belgium, 535; Russia, 550; Germany, 607; Great Britain, 712; Roumania, 922; Denmark (including Iceland), 1,155; France, 1,200; Scandinavia (Norway and Sweden), 1,404; Italy, 1,664; Austria, 1,698; Balkan peninsula, 1,900; Spain and Portugal, 2,296; Switzerland, 4,263. From this it would appear that the largest, Russia, is the third lowest, and that the third smallest, Switzerland, is the highest.

"Bravest Man on the Force"

By FREDERICK CLARKE

(©, 1921, Western Newspaper Union.)

The chief had sent for John Harrigan. John knew why he was summoned. He left the fire station under the disapproving looks of his companions. Nobody spoke to him; that was far harder than if they had reproached him. Reproaches are forgotten, but they had given him the silence.

The old chief turned round at his desk.

"Sit down, Harrigan," he said, glaring at him under his bushy eyebrows. There was a tense silence. Harrigan sat upon the edge of his chair, fingering his cap.

"What's this I hear about your being a coward, John?" asked the chief, yet so mildly that Harrigan took courage to glance up at him.

"They say," said Bethany mildly, "that at the fire in Winpole street last night you hung back instead of going up the ladder."

"Yes, sir," said John and began stammering out his excuses. It was his first big fire, and the sight of that flaming hell had paralyzed his limbs, although his heart was brave enough. He had only wanted someone to lead him, some word of encouragement to do heroic deeds. But alone, he could not take the initiative.

"John Harrigan," said Bethany, "I've been on the force for seven and thirty years. When I was a youngster I was a coward. At my first fire I hung back. Because of that a woman died. I've never told anyone but you, Harrigan, because I've never met another coward but you. John," he continued, "go back to your company and act like a man."

The firemen received the news of his reinstatement badly.

Harrigan could endure their silence. He knew that if only his chance came, he could redeem himself. But Mary Connor, his sweetheart, was told of the affair by a rival. She wrote him a curt little note of dismissal. "I don't want to marry a coward," she said. Soon he heard that she was engaged to another.

And his chance never came. That was the crown of his tragedy. He was put on detail work, set to copying documents in the sub-chief's office. He was never allowed out again.

One day he walked into Bethany's office.

"Chief," he said, "I haven't had my chance. I have been doing a clerk's job. Give me my chance to show that I'm a man."

Bethany looked at him, looked under his beetling eyebrows clear into his heart.

"You'll have your chance now. Report back for duty."

For a whole year he had seen nothing of Mary. Somebody told him that she was married.

His chance did come, about three months after his talk with Bethany. It was a little fire at first, but it spread swiftly, and by the time that the call came to his company, from the other end of the town, a whole block of tenement buildings was ablaze.

The hose was playing upon the fire; it might as well have been a child's squirtgun for all the effect it had. Above him—far above—he saw white faces of women at the windows. He heard their cries faintly in his ears.

A ladder was being raised. Harrigan sprang forward and began to ascend. He heard shouts beneath him. The captain was ordering him down. This was not for him; he was a coward and this was no coward's work.

He swung from the ladder to the narrow coping, just out of the reach of the flames. He did not dare look down. Above him—only one story above, he saw those women's faces. Even as he looked two disappeared. They had run back into the room, seeking madly for an outlet. One, immediately above, looked down. He choked. It was Mary.

Now he had no more fear. In another moment he was on the ledge by Mary's side. He clasped her in his arms.

They clung together on the ledge, fire over and under them. One minute of life remained.

"Mary—my love!" he whispered, pressing his lips to her cold cheek.

She opened her eyes. "John!" she answered, smiling.

"You are married, dear?"

"No, John. I was—waiting," she answered.

"For me?" he cried.

"To show that you were a man, John. And you have shown me."

Shouts came to him. The men were bracing ladders. An elongated snake of wood crawled up the side of the wall. The fiery tongues beneath were quenched. John felt for the ladder top with his feet and found it. He placed his feet upon the topmost rung, supporting Mary in his arms, and fainted in the arms of the man who had climbed to save him.

"Well done, John Harrigan," a voice was murmuring far away. He listened in amusement. What was the voice saying—"Bravest man on the fire force?" He opened his eyes. He looked into the keen blue eyes beneath the thick eyebrows of Fire Chief Bethany.

Drew an Inference.

"I've often heard," said Mrs. Boston, "that there isn't any money in literature, and now I'm convinced of it."

"How?" inquired the caller.

"Because Charley never seems to have a penny since he got acquainted with those men who make books."

One for Each Window.

The worst thing about the profusely windowed sleeping room, observes the Kansas City Star, is that you have to get up so many times before you finally locate the window which is doing the rattling.

BY-PRODUCTS OF LITERATURE

Authoress, Planning African Trip, Certainly Is Overlooking Nothing That Can Be Made Useful.

Using the by-products is the most characteristic feature of distinctly modern industry. How thoroughly this principle has been applied to literature comes out in an interview with a charming and able Chicago novelist who is taking her five-year-old daughter into Africa gorilla hunting with Carl Akeley's party.

The author in question will make the trip to collect local color, the basic material in the fiction industry. The first product will be a novel, with a movie to follow. But not all the local color which an African trip is bound to yield can be used in a novel, so the author plans to work over the waste in a travel book, which will find a ready sale to that small but choice public which has wearied of fiction. The third and rather special product will be the story of her small daughter's reaction to the adventure, which is expected to make another interesting book.

Each of the three books is a separate product of the basic local color; each will satisfy a certain special need and reach a public of its own. Between the fiction readers, the armchair travelers and the students of the child-mind, this author pretty well covers the book-buying classes. Considering how little daughter will probably react when she sights her first gorilla, the "child reactions" book may fairly be called "utilizing the squeal."—Chicago News.

KNOWS RIGHT TIME TO FISH

Man's Many Friends Have Furnished Him Just the Particular Dope, and the Rest Is Easy.

"I have the accurate dope now on just when to go fishing at the lakes," said a man who expects to take a vacation soon.

"I talked to a man last week and he said if I wished to do any good, to fish from 12 midnight to six in the morning. He used frogs and spatted for bass and caught lots of bass and also bluegills at that time. Besides it isn't hot then.

"Talked to a man Monday and he told me just when to catch them. I learned from him that the time to fish was between sundown and 12 midnight. He caught lots of bass and bluegills and crappies at that time.

"Talked to another man and he told me the best time to fish was from sunup until about 10 o'clock, and from 4 p. m. until dark.

"There was another neighbor of mine who gave me good advice. He never fishes after dark, but says he never paid any attention to the heat and that he always caught as many fish in the middle of the day as he did early in the morning or in the cool of the evening.

"So you see, I know just when to do my fishing."

Hints to Young Authors.

John Augustus Scribble wearily opened the envelope that brought back from its twentieth journey his "Ode on a Crusht Caterpillar."

There dropped upon the floor this letter from the regretful editor:

"Hint 1—Borrow half a dollar's worth of stamps.

"Hint 2—Don't begin to write till you feel you must. Such an attack is heralded by dizziness, listlessness and pains in the back.

"Hint 3—Then write down just enough words to relieve your pent-up emotions.

"Hint 4—Erase every second word.

"Hint 5—Carefully erase all the remaining words.

"Hint 6—Sell the stamps."—Pittsburgh Sun.

Disappearing Eagle.

Americans have made war to such an extent upon the national bird—the American eagle—that few specimens of the species are left in the East, and when one of these birds does show itself the first impulse of the man or boy who sees it is to shoot to kill. Yet the eagle is a harmless bird and does ill to nobody. Now and then a bald-head eagle flies over the national capital and a few are to be seen in the region of Washington, but they have become rare. Last spring a large and handsome member of the species was shot and killed in the woods bordering Neabsco creek, about thirty miles below Washington and close to the junction of that creek and the Potomac river.

Beruit's Housing Problem.

The return of many Syrians from North and South America, the presence of the French army of occupation, civil officers, European commercial travelers, tourists and refugees have together caused an unprecedented housing shortage in Beirut which is becoming a serious problem. The local government has attempted to control the rents by a decree, but the upward trend continues.

The several hotels deserving of mention can accommodate only about 250 persons in all. The city, with a population of 190,000, has no first-class hotel.—Commerce Reports.

Canada Liberal to Its Veterans.

The gratuity paid by the Canadian government to her World war veterans was by far the most liberal of all the allies. A married man, with three years' service, received a minimum of $600, and a single man $420, while the officers and noncommissioned officers received more, according to their rank.

Can't Be Done.

"I tell her she is the only woman I ever loved." "Of course." "But she doesn't seem to believe me." "You can't help that. I doubt if Adam ever convinced Eve on that point."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

TO HOLD INSPECTION OF HEADQUARTERS COMPANY

Headquarters Company of the Third Battalion of the 160th Infantry, California National Guard, will be inspected for Federal recognition at the Glendale Armory at 7:45 p. m. Monday, September 5.

The Headquarters Company is composed of 40 members of the old Fifth Separate Company of Glendale. The balance of the old organization goes to make up Company M which will be a machine gun unit.

Major Cotton, who is instructor of Infantry of the 160th Regiment, will personally inspect the new Headquarters Company. With Federal recognition an increased appropriation will be made for the maintenance of the Glendale companies. It is imperative for this reason that all men assigned to the new company appear for inspection.

Members of Headquarters Company are: B. J. Aageson, G. L. Andrews, H. Anunson, C. D. Bennett, C. F. Blanchard, G. L. Blanchard, H. M. Blanchard, P. M. Bradley, E. H. Brainard, E. J. Browne, S. F. FORMER CHAMPION WILL TRY HIS LUCK

By KENT WATSON,
International News Service Staff Correspondent

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 3.—With doubt still existing as to whether Francis Ouimet will be among the satellites who will compete for the amateur golf championship at the St. Louis Country Club during the week of September 17-24, it became certain today that Jerome Travers, former champion, will be here to attempt a "come-back." Travers has been inactive for two years.

Chick Evans, present title-holder, pressed by business, will forego competition in the Western Open Golf Tournament at Cleveland in order to defend his title here against the putts of what promises to be the most brilliant array of contenders ever assembled on the greens.

Editor Offers Cup

Grantland Rice, editor of the American Golfer, has placed an added trophy within the reach of laurel-seekers. He offers a handsome loving cup to the winner of an eighteen-hole match on Sunday, September 18. The contenders, he has specified, shall play in foursomes, with low-medal score instead of match play. Teams must be constituted of men from the same club and contenders for the Rice Cup must be members of the United States Golf Association.

Davidson Herron, 1919 champion, recently has taken several workouts over the championship course. He expects to compete in the championship title matches.

Arrangements for housing the golfers and the large number of newspaper men who will be here are nearing completion.

Cost of New Lamp Is Low.

A new incandescent lamp, filled with Neon gas, can be burned continuously at a cost of about 36 cents per month, as it consumes current at the rate of only five watts per hour. The red light emitted is used for signaling.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

FAIR EXCHANGE

By MILDRED WHITE.

©, 1921, Western Newspaper Union.

Dulcie turned wearily from the gay party assembled on the moonlit beach. Dean's flirtatious tendency annoyed her. It was not jealousy, she told herself indignantly, which caused her distress, but humiliation at his public desertion. It was this same well-known charm of his for women, which had won her own heart. Dulcie, rebellious for others' sakes, had started out with the intention of teaching Dean Wrayburn a lesson in the heart-wrecking game which he would not forget—and had but fallen captive for her pains.

He was such a jolly, unfailingly interesting, companion, considerate of her slightest wish.

After a month or so of Dean's companionship, Dulcie wondered how she had ever managed without it, and had agreed upon accepting the gift as her right, for life. But now, desolate at the end of the beach, she waited until it might suit her fiance's fancy to excuse himself to the laughing, pretty Mollie Reynolds.

Mollie was such a silly creature, Dulcie felt contempt for herself that she might not hold her lover against such rivalry. Then all at once it came to her that Dean was not worth holding. There and then she settled the matter. She would seek a place in her brother Jack's waiting car, and Dean, when he sought her out to take her home, should find that she had already departed. Tomorrow she would give him back his ring, and after the wrench of loss, would go on her way—carefree, at least. Dulcie discovered the car parked in the rounded row near the edge of the park. She crept into the long back seat, drawing the covering to protect her from the breeze, and was soon, despite her impending broken heart, fast asleep. She merely awoke to snuggle more comfortably on the cushions, as the car later swung about, propelled by invisible hands, making its way down the long river road. Presently Jack began to whistle softly, then to sing still more softly in a vibrant tenor.

Dulcie blinked her blue eyes. Jack never had owned a tenor voice or any singing voice at all. Jack was not at the wheel. She sat up and as she did so, the driver removed his hat, allowing the breeze to caress his dark hair. Jack's hair was decidedly blonde.

"Mercy!" cried Dulcie; the word sounded more like a hiss than an exclamation.

The driver swung about, losing control of the wheel.

"Well! Of all the—" he began, then stopped to fire a question.

"Who are you?" he asked.

Dulcie believed that she had happened accidentally upon a burglar, as he was about to make away with her brother's car.

"Say," he demanded, "did you get into my car by mistake or is this some kind of a joke?"

The thought of having mistaken a like make of car had not occurred to her; but a hurried surreptitious search of flaps and pockets revealed such to be the case. There were certain things always carried in Jack's car—her own little emergency bag, with cap and veil, mother's light dust coat. Moreover, this pocket that Dulcie examined contained a light crimson wool scarf; there were tassel ends to the scarf. Dulcie knew those flaming perfumed tassels—this was Mollie Reynolds' property, unmistakably.

"How," she again questioned of the staring young man, "does this scarf happen to be here?"

"Mollie wore it down," he answered briefly. Moll—Miss Reynolds is engaged to me. Was," he corrected himself quickly. "For she won't be, after her silly conduct this evening. Makes a fellow feel cheap to have the girl he intends to marry dance around after that hurrah Dean boy. Got pretty tired of it. Not jealous," he defended. "Just showed me my mistake."

He stopped himself.

"Beg pardon," he said. "I don't know why I'm letting all this out."

Dulcie laughed.

"It was the scarlet scarf," she told him. "Some way those tassels make one think of Mollie. I did make a mistake in the car. I took yours to be my brother's. Now, I am afraid you will have to drive me home. It isn't far. Mother will be waiting."

"I wish," the young man said impulsively, "that it might be far. I would like someone to talk to, someone sympathetic. I've been pretty lonely this evening."

Nimbly Dulcie swung into the front seat.

"Well," I am sympathetic, all right," she said as she sat at his side. "You see, I happened to be engaged to Dean Wrayburn. I've been somewhat lonely myself."

When the strangely pleasing young man handed Dulcie out at her father's door, she smiled at him.

"You have forgiven my mistake?" she asked.

The young man laughed.

"That was no mistake," he said decidedly. "You and I just had to meet. I'm coming to take you for another drive tomorrow—if I may."

HAS POSITION TO MAINTAIN

Drum-Horse of British and American Cavalry Bands Must Be of Distinguished Appearance.

There are grades of honor, even among horses. We are apt to think of the war horse as a proud animal, and so he is, and has a right to be, for he is called upon to be as brave as he is proud. But proudest and most dignified of all horses of the army is the animal that is called upon to fill the position of drum-horse in the regimental band. In the American and British armies cavalry bands are mounted, and the most honorable position in all the band is that of the bearer of the kettle-drums. The horse is selected for his distinguished appearance. He is often piebald, altho sometimes pure white.

Something more than mere beauty of form is required of the drum-horse. He must be trained until he becomes a dignified and graceful bearer of the handsome trappings that pertain to his high calling. His education is severe and prolonged bringing him up to that point where his pride and intelligence make him equal to the duties required of him.

He is severely tried by the booming of the large drums he carries, but in time he becomes indifferent to their noise. In the parade, his rider has his hands full in the use of the sticks; he controls the horse by means of reins fastened to the stirrup-strap near the foot.—Christian Science Monitor.

USED BAMBOO TO MAKE CLOCK

Remarkable Work of Italian Considered Well Worth the Money He Asks for It.

An eight-day clock whittled out of bamboo by Constanzo Renzi, of Rome, and valued at $50,000, is on exhibition in the jewelry and silverware division on the fourth floor of the Bush Terminal sales building, says the New York Times. Two years were required to make the clock, which is made entirely of bamboo with the exception of the leaden weight and two small glasses which serve as gongs.

The clock, with its complicated bamboo mechanism suggesting a miniature steel skyscraper in course of construction, stands about 7½ feet high. At any time by looking at it one can tell the hour, minute and second, the day of the week and the month of the year, as well as the phases of the moon.

The clock strikes the hours and quarter-hours, a cane mallet forced by a cane spring striking two goblets which serve as bells. The chimes are regulated to indicate the time to those who cannot see the clock. At noon, if desired, a small flag is raised, the raising being preceded by a whistle from a bamboo tube, and one minute after the noon hour a cannon at the top of the clock is discharged.

Saw the Six Hundred Ride to Death.

William Richardson, a Crimean war veteran and an eye witness to the charge of the Light brigade at Balaklava, died here recently, aged ninety years. He, with seven members of the crew of a British merchant vessel, deserted the humdrum sailing ship at Constantinople and enlisted in the navy with the Saucy Arethusa. When the old wooden battleship was put out of action at Sebastopol he and 55 others volunteered for land service in the Greenhill battery. While at headquarters he was only about twelve feet from Lord Raglan when he handed an order to Captain Nolan, who carried the message to Lucan, who issued the order for the charge to Cardigan.—St. Catharines correspondence Toronto Globe.

Future of Brazil.

Brazil, which is almost wholly in the tropics, has the opportunity to upset the belief that no people can reach the very highest civilization in a tropical climate. The census, just completed, credits Brazil with 30,500,000 people, which makes it the second American country in point of population. Some modern men of science maintain that when means have been found to utilize the heat of the sun as mechanical energy the tropics will become centers of production and therefore of civilization. If that should be true, what country could match Brazil, with its great resources of minerals, timber and land, and its great navigable rivers?

Texas Raises Less Rice.

It is estimated that the rice acreage in Texas this season is more than 50 per cent less than that of last year. Growers assert that they lost money on their crop last year, due to low prices and poor marketing conditions. The Southern Rice Growers' association has gone out of business and its place is being taken by the American Rice Growers' association, which is said to be patterned after the California Fruit Growers' association, so far as its co-operative and marketing features are concerned.

Balloon Goes Higher Than Airplane.

While the record altitude for airplanes is broken almost every year, that for manned balloons has stood unchanged since the balloonists Borson and Suering rose to a height of 35,400 feet above sea level at Berlin in 1901. This is a little better than the best airplane record.

EDITH MAY OSBORNE REPORTS NUMBER OF GOOD SALES

EDITH MAY OSBORNE, 210 West Doran, reports the following sales for the past week:

A 5-room bungalow owned by Ingledue of Glendale Market, located at 1138 North Louise to Randolph Leigh, a newspaper man.

Lot on North Maryland to Mrs. A. C. Eckert, who will build a residence.

Lot on North Maryland to E. P. Ranson, who will build a beautiful Spanish bungalow.

Southwest corner of Central and Arden to Geo. O. Piercy, who will build two lovely Spanish bungalows.

Three lots at the corner San Fernando Road and Garfield avenue to J. V. Zimmerman of South Los Angeles. Mr. Zimmerman will build a residence on the portion facing Garfield avenue and business buildings on that facing San Fernando Road, 163 feet long. Mr. Zimmerman and family come to Glendale owing to the good schools. A daughter will enter Glendale High when it opens this month.

HALIDAY HOME SOLD

F. H. Trenton of Chicago heard so much about the desirability of Glendale as a place to live from his cousin, Mrs. Frank Runyan, 317 Hawthorne street, that he wrote her enclosing a check for $7,000 and instructing her to buy a home for him here, so he would have a "place to go to" when he arrived next Monday morning. She followed out his instructions and purchased the E. T. Haliday home at 468 West Hawthorne street, and Mr. Trenton will arrive Monday to take possession. The transaction was handled by Parr & Davis, 112 South Brand.

The same firm has just sold to Miss Adelaide P. Ilman and sister of Los Angeles for F. G. Moore, property located at 1830 Gardena avenue. Miss Ilman is an employe of the California Bank and is very much taken with the southern part of the city not only because of its many attractions but also on account of its nearness to Los Angeles and reduced car fare.

BOOKS HOLD ROMANCES
(By International News Service)

MANSFIELD, Ohio, Sept. 3—Romances found between the leaves of numerous books in the public library here were never dreamed of by the books' authors.

In many books returned to the public librarian by patrons are found old letters, pink-tinted notes, fresh-looking letters never mailed, lacy handkerchiefs, cigar bands, samples of dress material, postcards, kodak pictures and telegrams, all forgotten by the owners who placed them between the leaves.

Each of these forgotten articles tells its own story. In some of the old books are to be found letters yellow with age, bearing names of relatives long since passed away.

If the earth developed a new motion all the seasons would change, as the latter depend on the earth's distance from the sun and whether the sun's rays fall vertically or obliquely.

If all the sea dried up, it has been estimated that the salt deposit left would form a covering one mile thick over a million square miles.

SAGE TEA TURNS GRAY HAIR DARK

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre to Hair

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the mixture; you can get this famous old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients at a small cost, all ready to use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous.

IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

Flush Your Kidneys Occasionally if You Eat Meat Regularly

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they slugishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys elean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

MR. JINKS WAS DISCOURAGED

With All His Hard Work on "Flivver," All He Could Do Was Make the Horn Squawk.

Mr. Jinks has been the proud possessor of a brand-new flivver for nearly three weeks, and his precious treasure is never far from his thoughts. Every moment he can spare is devoted to polishing its glossy coat or tinkering with its vitals in the effort to discover the cause of its occasional spells of mulish balkiness.

The other night—about two o'clock—Mrs. Jinks was awakened by terrific yowls emitted by the family cat. Now the cat was a peaceful pussy and not at all given to nocturnal vocal demonstrations. Imagine Mrs. Jinks' astonishment when she arose and discovered her husband sitting on the edge of the bed, vigorously twisting the cat's tail round and round.

"John," she protested, rescuing her pet with some difficulty, "what on earth are you doing?"

Mr. Jinks was evidently in a somnambulistic state, for he scratched his head and responded sleepily:

"Sh' won't go, honey; sh' simply won't go. I've cranked an' cranked an' th' horn squawks, an' thash all. Guesh 'll have t' sen' 'er up fer repairs. Somethin' mush be matter wizzer magneto. 'Sdarn shame, an' ain't paid fer yet, even!"—From Nuggets.

DOG RECOGNIZED ITS HOME

Even at Sea, and at Some Distance, Animal Knew Destroyer to Which It Belonged.

Except for the serial numbers painted boldly on the bow, most persons have the greatest difficulty in recognizing one of the 300 destroyers in the United States navy from another, but there is a dog aboard the destroyer Schenck No. 159 which seems in this regard to have far more than human intelligence.

This dog—of no particular breed—has been aboard the Schenck for about two years.

Officers aboard the Schenck are tellin the story of how, not long ago, when the vessel went from Pensacola to Guantanamo, the dog was lost. He could not be found when the time for departure arrived, although the crew had been searching the town for him for almost two hours.

It developed that the dog, after the Schenck departed, reached another destroyer and went to sea with them.

During the voyage the two destroyers passed well out to sea. The dog was on the bridge and barked so loudly that he attracted the attention of the Schenck.

Explosions.

Volcanic explosions are commonly regarded as the release of stores of energy kept confined by external pressure, and boiler explosions and geyser eruptions are typical of this class of outbreaks. An expert of the United States geophysical laboratory finds that another class of explosions, that of explosive mixtures like gunpowder, are not likely to occur in volcanoes. But a third class, that of explosive compounds brought into contact with oxygen or water, is more probably the usual source of volcanic explosions, and is illustrated by aluminum sesquioxide — finely divided — brought into such relation with water in the electric furnace that mechanical detonation causes violent explosion. The dust of Mont Pelee may have been analogous to the aluminum sesquioxide.

Coaxing It.

"Is Mr. Dubwaite's golf game improving?"

"It doesn't show much improvement, but he certainly is in earnest."

"How is that?"

"He talks to a golf ball as if he were addressing a pair of dice."—Birmingham Age-Herald.
